The A. P. Abbott company has installed in the front part of their store a large attractive information bulletin. The bulletin is the handwork of James Robertson and is a valuable asset to all business visitors in regard to the schedules of the electric and of the stages to the neighboring towns. The schedule of the trains, along with information regarding the hours of Barre's various banks, is among the other items on the bulletin.

Mrs. N. F. Clark of Cedar street left the city this morning for Milton, where she attended the funeral of her brother, Edgar Fletcher, which was held this afternoon with burial in the village cemetery. Mr. Fletcher lost his life in Lake Champlain last Sunday while boating with a number of friends. There were five people in the boat and of the circumstances immediately surrounding the man's death, his sister, who received news of the drowning early in the week, was not advised. Strenuous efforts to effect a rescue were made, but Mr. Fletcher sank in deep water and the body was not recovered until Wednesday, after the services of several boatmen had been enlisted in the search. Mr. Fletcher was around 40 years old and had resided in Milton for many years. He leaves two sisters and a brother. Mrs. Clark expects to remain in Milton for a few days.

The Washington county registration board, which is to have charge of the draft in this section, has received another set of instructions which serve as a complement to the rules and regulations under which the board acted while the list of registrants was being prepared. One pamphlet is denoted as the regulations governing the apportionment of quotas and credits. The second pamphlet discusses at length the rules which are to govern the physical examination and has been placed in the hands of Dr. J. H. Woodruff, the surgeon of the board. All manner of disqualifications for military service are described and distinctions between defects that debar and defects that offer no hindrance to service are clearly defined. Members of the local board believe that the machinery to be used in the selections will be ready for use within a few days and the feeling obtains in some quarters that the draft will be made next week. During the past few days a number of registrants have gone to the capital for the express purpose of ascertaining their serial number.

Foster E. Johnson, who has been a member of the road working gang just over the city line in Berlin, was arrested on an intoxication charge last night and arraigned before Magistrate H. W. Scott in city court to-day for an alleged subsequent offense. In reply to questions asked by State's Atty. Earle R. Davis, Johnson told of buying a pint of whiskey in a first class license establishment on North Main street. His statement was the first disclosure of its kind on a licensee of the first class since the open saloon regime began. Judge Scott suspended sentence until 7 o'clock to-night and remanded the man to the police station.

Of growing importance as a rallying place for the riff-raff is a sequestered spot in the M. & W. R. freight yards, where the cast-off barrels of a half-dozen life saving stations are piled to await return to the breweries. The famous cold spring off Granite street, long a rendezvous for booze recruits, raw and otherwise, is deserted now, and the popular hang-out has moved uptown. Recently five barrel scavengers were busy with a siphon campaign among the "empties," and the stale beer was being absorbed apparently with great gusto. On several occasions the police have broken up the siphon parties, but the alchemists of the road watch their chances and carry on the quest when the officers are not looking. Thus far the railroad authorities have indulged drinking of this sort and it is only when successive shipments suddenly denude the yard of its barrels that the siphon operators are not in evidence.

The Red Cross needs your time as well as your money. Can you not give a few hours each week to sew on the garments so much needed at this time?

Dr. and Mrs. Leon E. Page, who, with his father, Fred L. Page of Highland avenue, have just returned to Barre from a few days' outing in the big woods around the foot of Spruce mountain and a hike to the top of that peak, are spending the day in Williamstown with Dr. and Mrs. L. D. Martin and family.

A bull dog whose snapping jaws and fiendish grin bore a sharp likeness to the conventional caricature of the Kaiser created a small-sized reign of terror on Washington street yesterday afternoon and a number of persons who did or did not escape with their wearing apparel unharmed, are ready to depose that the dog is the canine incarnation of the somewhat unfavorably known war lord. People in the neighborhood credit the ownership of the Hun dog to William F. Kennedy, who lives at 121 Washington street. Treasurer C. H. Wishart of the Granite Savings bank was attacked by the dog and John Trow, president of the same institution, was set upon by the same animal. It was only a co-incidence that both men were bankers, for the next victim was a woman and the gleeful verve with which the dog terrorized her indicated that his predilection is not altogether for bankers. Complaints kept the wires hot at police headquarters during the afternoon and by night the city attorney had the matter in hand and was ready to investigate.
